A New Adjutant-General and the Changes Caused by the Appointment.

Yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock the President sent over to the War department the helpers, it is certainly providential that the announcement that he had decided upon the cool weather is continuing in order to prevent appointment of Colonel John C. Kelton to be adjutant-general of the army to succeed Gen. Richard C. Drum, who was placed on the retired list on the 28th of May. This announcement caused general jubilation in the department, where Gen. Kelton is a prime favorite. The word was passed from mouth to mouth, and the fortunate officer was besieged for a long time by his colleagues, eager to offer their congratulations. this action of the Pres-

MORE RAIN AND A THUNDER STORM. To-day at Johnstown opened with a heavy rain and an early morning thunder storm. The everything was dripping. The air was chilly and damp and daylight was long in coming to this valley of desolation and death. At an early hour the valley where so many have gone to rest presented a most dismal scene. It looked, indeed, like the valley of the dead. Nothing was moving, and all remained within the meager shelter offered them till the day had fairly begun. As the day advanced the tented hills began to show signs of life; have. At 5:30 of the Johnstown sufferers, a.m. the whistle from the Cambria iron works sounded the signal for early preparation for the serious work of the day, and so the thousands of workers in behalf of the sufferere were soon moving on the hill sides and in the valleys. The weather was most unpleasant for any one to be out doors, but it apparently had no effect on the people here, for as soon as the Hair, an Ogallaia chief, claims that the early breakfast was over the thousands of Indians did not understand whether workmen could be seen going to their work, the money paid under the provisions of the and soon the whole valley, that in the early morning hours was asleep, was a teeming throng of life and estimits.
